Town of Phandalin

Phandalin

Population: Approximately 140 people

Size: Small

Government: Local (with support from the Lords' Alliance and Neverwinter)

The frontier town of Phandalin is built on the ruins of a much older settlement. Hundreds of years ago, the old Phandalin was a thriving human town whose people were firmly allied with the dwarves and gnomes of the Phandelver's Pact. However, the same orc horde that sacked the mines at Wave Echo Cave laid waste to the settlement, and Phandalin was abandoned for centuries.

In the last three or four years, hardy settlers from the cities of Neverwinter and Waterdeep have begun the hard work of reclaiming the ruins of Phandalin. A bustling frontier settlement has grown up on the site of the old town, and is home now to farmers, woodcutters, fur traders, and prospectors drawn by stories of gold and platinum in the foothills of the Sword Mountains. Unfortunately, more than a few bandits and brigands have settled here as well, taking advantage of the fact that the area has no local lord or authority to chase them off. A gang known as the Redbrands has controlled Phandalin for the past two months, extorting and bullying everyone in town.

Sleeping Goblin Inn

“ The Sleeping Goblin (Formerly the Sleeping Giant) is the homebase of the Merry Band and the Phandalin Guard (for now).

Description:

7 bedrooms, one main area with a bar, one storage room, one kitchen, one freestanding shack for the dwarf to live in

Redbrand Camp

A large camp in the woods, The Party discovered this semi-fortified bandit camp about 8 hours away from Phandalin. This camp is surrounded by a tall 15 foot wall of timber and has a large wooden gate. There are three wooden buildings in the camp and one stone building.

The camp has several wagons near the southeastern side.

The camp has a large bonfire in the center that is always kept ablaze.

The camp has a training field near the northeastern side.

The camp has a guard post and shack near the main gate.

The camp has several metal cages (currently holding 17 members of the town of Phandalin).
